Simi Valley Education Foundation will be holding an E-WASTE Recycling Day for items such as computers, laptops, monitors, televisions, scanners, cell phones, printers, fax machines, answering machines and keyboards.

Don't call it junk -- it's e-waste. In its prime, perhaps only a year or two ago, it was the largest monitor, the fastest computer, the "newest and latest" TV.

Today, it's e-waste: outdated, unwanted electronic equipment, plucked from closets, spare bedrooms and garages and now to be recycled at the Simi Valley Education Foundation's first-ever e-waste recycling day at the Simi Valley Unified School District parking lot on Saturday, October 18th from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

The Simi Valley Unified School District is located at 875 Cochran Street, Simi Valley -- just west of First Street - which makes for easy in/out drop offs.

The cost is free and open to the public.

Why all the fuss about tossing electronic gear?

Many safe, common household electronics contain hazardous materials that are toxic when released into our environment.

Laws place restrictions on where and how the public can dispose of electronic equipment. Some components can be recycled while others contain dangerous levels of toxic substances and shouldn't be placed in garbage headed for landfills.

Recycling days allow the public opportunities to be environmentally responsible by ridding themselves of e-waste at no cost.

The Simi Valley Education Foundation wants to encourage those of you out there to bring your old electronics in so that they can be disposed of in a safe manner. Be GREEN and help the Simi Valley Education Foundation earn money for every pound of E-waste recycled.

All proceeds go to our public schools!!

The E-WASTE Recycling Day is sponsored by Simi Valley Education Foundation, The Ventura County Star and managed by eGreenRecycle.com.

This event is not affiliated with Simi Valley Unified School District.
